Dear Sirs and/or Madam,

Re: Liberty Gap Windfarm Project, CASE # 05-1740

The Tucker farm on Jack Mountain in Pendleton County, West Virginia has been a part of the best, both childhood and adult, memories imaginable. I have spent and will spend many a holiday on the Tucker farm. The breathtaking night sky, tranquility and natural beauty is incomparable. It is a place where I want my child to continue to experience the same pristine, untouched natural environment, rolling hills, untainted streams, learning to appreciate what God has given but man wants to destroy.

Anna Tucker is my dearest and oldest friend. I have known Anna and her family since 1968 when I lived with my family in Washington, DC. Anna is my daughter Nina's godmother.

The mere thought of the proposed Liberty Gap Windfarm Project sends shivers down my spine. I can only imagine the devastating impact the wind turbines will have on the natural beauty of the Tucker farm and surrounding area, not to mention the bird migrations, livestock and other wildlife. To destroy the serenity and beauty of the area for an unproven and unreliable energy source is reckless.

It is debatable who will profit from this project, certainly not the local citizens. I beg you to reconsider the Liberty Gap Windfarm Project and not deploy these monstrosities anywhere near the Tucker Farm or surrounding area. We who treasure and have the fortune to stay at the Tucker farm should not have to see or hear the wind turbines and witness the slow destruction of a natural environment. Jack Mountain is not the place for industrial scale wind turbines.

Sincerely,

Snežana and Nina Vukelić
